What are the 2 most important skills he or she should have?
Preparing Future Leaders (PFL) is The Graduate School’s premiere initiative designed to establish a foundation for professional development for graduate students and postdocs. PFL encompasses three crucial themes: career skills, teaching and mentoring, and responsible conduct of research and scholarship. We provide opportunities for participants to gain knowledge and skills that empower them to recognize their potential as leaders today. Participants examine attitudes and values of themselves and others to build their capacity to lead effectively with integrity, insight, and compassion.
